

1. Disdain me still

(Der Text ist in der Gedichtanthologie von Lord William Steward, Earl of Pembroke und Sir Benjamin Ruddier (1660) veröffentlicht, Autor ungenannt)

Cantus

Dis-dain me still that I may e - ver love,
And heat to life so is de-sire — to love,

Gitarre

Capo III

5

For who his love en- joys, — can love, can love — no — more.
And these once quench'd, both life — and love, and love — are — gone.

10

The war — once past with ease; — men co - wards prove;
Let not — my sighs nor tears — thy vir - tue move,

14

And ships re - turn'd, — do — rot up - on the shore.
Like bas - er — me - tals — do not melt too soon.

18

And _____ though thou frown I'll say thou
Laugh _____ at my woes, al - though I

22

art most fair, most _____ fair; And still I'll _____
e - ver mourn, e - ver mourn, Love sur - feits _____

26

_____ love, and still I'll _____ love, I'll love,
_____ with, love sur - feits _____ with re - ward,

29

though still, though still _____ I must des - pair.
re - ward, re - ward, _____ his nurse is scorn.
